Nevada is proud to recognize Janice Miller as an outstanding volunteer from our state. Janice first became involved in LDA of Nevada in 2007 when she sought help in finding support and advocacy information. She became an active member of our affiliate at that time and has continued to this day. Janice first volunteered for our state conference and helped out with registration. She then became secretary for LDA of Nevada and brought her expertise to this job. Janice served as secretary for 2 years. Since that time she has served in many capacities including treasurer and president for a 2 year term. During her term as president, LDA of Nevada became reinvigorated and saw an upswing in membership. She directed 2 outstanding state conferences during this time, also. The enthusiasm and dedication Janice brings to LDA of Nevada is inspiring to so many.

Janice Miller is a learning disabilities teacher in Carson, Nevada. She is married and has 2 children. This includes one daughter with learning disabilities.
